Intellectual Renaissance.

Prof. Martin Hartmann, of Berlin, has written a book in which he points out a noticeable intellectual renaissance in the Mohammedan world, as indicated in the increasing number and circulation of Arabic newspapers.

Importing Canadian Shellfish.

Lobsters are so scarce along the New England coast that the imports of the live shellfish from the Canadian maritime provinces promise to be larger than ever for this fiscal year.

Snow Fireplaces in Alaska.

Sixty degrees below zero is the frightfully cold atmosphere in which Alaska gold hunters must often work. They make fireplaces of snow in that desolate region. The snow is pressed into blocks like bricks, and a fireplace two or three feet square is built with them. When the fire is lighted, the snow, of course, melts on the surface, but when the fire is out this freezes so hard that the next fire causes it to become only damp. A snow fireplace used only for cooking purposes will last for an entire winter.

Queer English Custom.

Since 1377 the aldermen of London have annually presented to the high officers of the state, such as lord chancellor, the lord chief justice, the home secretary, and the foreign secretary, as well as certain officials of the city, pieces of cloth, which, in the case of the town clerk, reaches the maximum of twelve yards. This custom of guilds and corporations clothing their members led, it is said, to the origin of the liveries of the various companies.

Women Elect Women.

Women teachers in France elect women members on all boards of education. In Sweden women vote for all elective officers except representatives; also, indirectly, for members of the upper house. In Ireland women vote for the harbor boards and poor law guardians, and in Belfast for municipal officers. In Russia women householders vote for all elective officers and on all local matters.

Sailor's Wide Trousers.

A writer in the New York Sun offers this sartorial information: A sailor's trousers are cut wide at the bottom so that in holystoning and washing the deck, also in wading ashore from a small boat, he can pull them up to the knee, the full part fitting the thick, and a small cloth strap buttons to the waistband, holding them up. They just fold back or up.

Doing Service at the Cape.

According to Poultney Bigelow, the gaudy umbrellas which once piled up and down Fifth avenue are now in service at the Cape, being people to and from the docks. It was odd to see painted on the sides of these buses the old familiar pictures representing Indians chasing buffaloes, or a scene on the Hudson river.

Act as Lightning Conductors.

The wire ropes fastened to some of the most dangerous places in the Alps, while they form an important safeguard, have been found to present a new danger as well. They act as lightning conductors and several tourists were stunned during the past summer, but none of the casualties proved fatal.

Phenomenon in Paris.

Owing to the exceptional mildness of the weather early in this month, buds are forming on many of the handsome chestnut trees both in the Champs Elysees and in the Avenue Kleber. Such a phenomenon at this time of the year has not been seen in Paris for more than a century.
